

NON-EXAMPLE INFOGRAPHIC: PARKING

Color me coinless

All those colored meters aren't just aesthetic. Each color corresponds with the parking time allowed for that space. Limiting meter minutes gives everyone a shot at those prime parking spots downtown. Feeding meters — adding time to a meter past the maximum hour limit — can get you a ticket. Here's how many hours each color allows you to relax ticket-free:

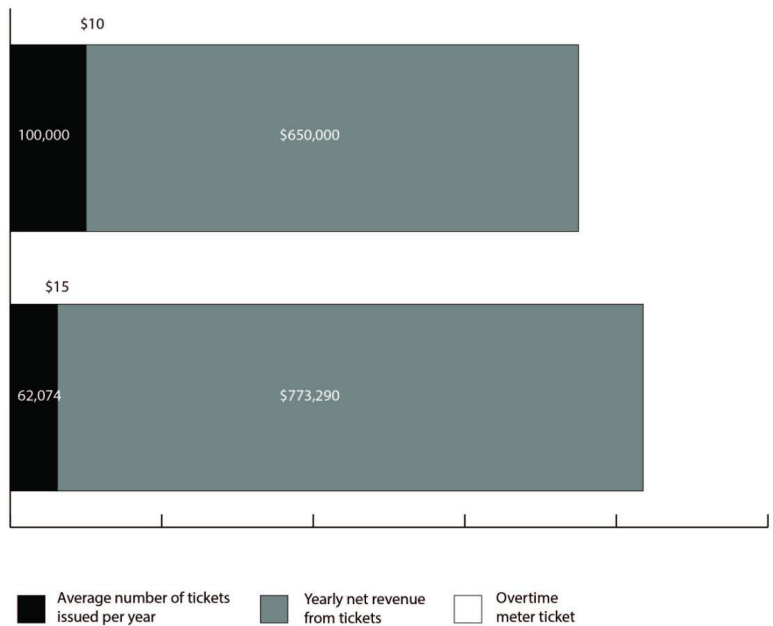

https://commons.wikimedia.org/wiki/File:Parking_Meter_Front.JPG

Ticket or leave it

Breaking the parking rules gets you a golden parking ticket. It seems like drivers are getting ticketed at every turn, but which entity, MU or the city, hands out more tickets? Parking supervisors, Michael Sokoff from MU and Tanner Morrell from the city, gave us their stats. The numbers speak for themselves.

Chump change

Surprise, surprise: Buying parking minutes in bulk will save you some change. See how permits and meters on campus stack up to city parking options.

